I live so close to TX I'd so much rather just buy tickets there. I just figured it out that it would save me time and gas. My husband always buys tickets then sometimes he accidentally throws out the winners! The other day I took his tickets to the store to verify that he was losing the tickets I found $30 he missed. The TX app allows you to scan the QR thing at the bottom of each scratch off and verifies the weather is the winner and how much or if it isn't. The TX lottery app is awesome, not like this junk. I have to keep driving to the store to check the tickets and then people look at me like I'm crazy. It's not crazy when you find the money my husband throws in the trash!!! I never, ever write app reviews, but this app is so horrible that I had to. If I could give zero stars, I would, because it constantly crashes, immediately. Literally, once it's open, it crashes from the first screen.... Save yourself the trouble, the frustration & the memory - because this app is nothing but a useless waste of precious memory, taking up space on my iPhone.. It will definitely be deleting after posting this review. He was interested in the app as tickets say download the official app for more prizes. Tried to scan tickets and says the technical error is after attempting to submit. Not sure what error I was logged in and the ticket numbers came correctly after scanning. This application is useless if it gets updated and repaired. Developer, Developer, Games International did not provide Apple with details of its privacy practices and data manipulation. I usually keep tickets in a safe place, but I never follow the numbers. When I hear about a big win in my state, I don't have to resurrect what I'm doing to check my ticket. I've got results here. Every time I give my new tickets, I can easily get rid of others that I know I don't win. The scan works decently from my iPhoneX and my 6plus I had. Sometimes he doesn't scan all the numbers. The best advice I have is to give it a bit of a boundary on the scan page and it works great for me. Saving my numbers here helps me with my losing and winning magazine for tax purposes. A really nice feature is to have it capture all your winnings and losses and export to the table. It would help with my Excel lottery magazine. But overall the great work of smartcaptain app for pool lottery managers tracks spending and winnings. So you can use it for tax purposes. I highly recommend this application. It needs to be got. Scans super fast easy to use. He even has the ability to use power play options for mega and power ball. I believe this application and have been using it for several months. I tried other applications and they take forever to scan the ticket. This app's super fast scan only takes a few seconds to enter tickets and automatically tells you if you win and how much. Bill S. I just want to scan - fast! - a bunch of elk that were sitting around possibly unchecked. Most of them are older tickets. Mostly Powerball and MegaMillions. Each ticket has the numbers I drew, the date of the match and the value of the ticket. It's printed right there. There is also a barcode at the bottom of the ticket, which must contain the same information, I'm guessing, in a more machine-readable format. So why, with apps like this, do I scroll down, down, down until I finally find the date I want, then scan the ticket, then line the numbers up, how can it tell me something?! Any necessary information is printed directly on the ticket. I should be able to go boom, boom, boom, scan each ticket with one click, then another, and another, and more. Instead, it's mind-numbing my enraged have to go through. The only reason I give two stars instead of one is that it does at least scan one piece of necessary information, so it's better than some other applications. Since I can't give zero stars, the others get one star, which means they get two. So, great job, boys. Two stars because you are better than those that receive the lowest rating. Congratulations.
